"I REPEAT THAT I NEVER CAN AND NEVER WILL VOTE, DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY, FOR ANY POWER WHICH WILL EVER MAKE ME VOTE, TO SPREAD SLAVERY OVER TERRITORY WHERE IT DOES NOT EXIST."—HENRY CLAY.

"The freemen of the North have a deep interest in keeping labor free, exclusively free, in the new territories. * * * I have made up my mind, for one, that WHERE NO CIRCUMSTANCE, WILL I CONSENT TO THE FURTHER EXPENSION OF THE AREA OF SLAVERY in the United States, or to the further increase of Slave representation in the House of Representatives."—DANIEL WEBSTER.

The "Sentinel" for the Campaign.

As many persons may be desirous to obtain the Sentinel for the Campaign, without ordering it for the full term of a year, we publish the following rates, at which we will send one or more copies of our several editions, from July 15th to December 1st. As the Election occurs Nov. 4th, this ought, in these days of telegraphs, to enable us to give the result in all of the States of the Union except California, in the last number.

WEEKLY,	87½

The above rates for the Daily and Tri-Weekly are somewhat less than our regular terms. For the Weekly they are the same as $1 per year. CIRCULATE THE DOCUMENTS.

NEWS OF THE MORNING.

The Niagara arrived in New York yesterday morning. The news will be found under the telegraph head.

The sad fate of young SILKMAN has cast a gloom over our whole community.

Just as we are going to press—midnight, Wednesday—we hear of the suicide of GILBERT SMITH, at the residence of his father, J. B. Smith, on Van Buren St., 7th Ward. GILBERT was about 20 years of age, and leaves troops of friends to mourn his untimely end.

We commence another interesting letter from our foreign correspondent to-day.

We devote a large space to matters in Kansas as reported by an eye witness.

The beautiful village of Corning has been destroyed by fire.

The Meeting Last Night.

About 200 freemen assembled last night at Concert Hall for the purpose of organizing a Fremont club. Albert Smith, Esq., was called to the chair, and W. S. Candee appointed Secretary.

Mr. C. K. Wells moved the election of a committee of one from each Ward; the following were elected:

A. F. Clarke, 1st Ward.
J. H. Phelps, 2d "
John Lowther, 3d "
Hiram K. Bond, 4th "
W. A. Hawkins, 6th "
Cicero Comstock, 6th "
C. K. Wells, 7th "

The committee were to appoint permanent officers for a Fremont club.

Mr. Finch urged the appointment of officers by the committee forthwith.

Mr. Booth opposed the resolution of Mr. Finch, and hoped the committee would not report until at an adjourned meeting to be held on Saturday night, and hoped that the officers would not be selected from Lawyers.

Mr. Finch replied at some length, and thought the meeting was as well prepared to organize at once as at any other time.

Gen. Paine advocated the organization to-night.

The question was put and carried, with cheers, that the Committee report officers and a constitution immediately.

J. H. Tweedy moved that the Committee be instructed to report, as far as they deem it expedient, to-night, and to leave unreported whatever they may deem proper.

The Chairman thought there should be one Committee to report certain designated officers, and another committee to draw up and report a Constitution and By-Laws.

Mr. Tweedy's motion was carried.

Gen. Paine moved that the Committee report a President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer and Executive Committee of three—carried.

John H. Tweedy was loudly called for, and made a stirring speech, in which he gave a scathing review of the history of Stephen A. Douglass, in his political course; reviewed the course of Mr. Buchanan, &c, in an able manner. He was frequently interrupted with cheers and loudly applauded at the conclusion.

The committee reported being unable to make a proper report for want of time.

A committee was then appointed of one from each ward to draft a constitution and report it at the next meeting, to be held at Concert Hall on Saturday evening next at 8 o'clock. The following is the committee:

1, Byron Paine.
2, Mr. Phelps.
3, John Cummings.
4, F. B. Hill.
5, Wenzel.
6, G. Vliet.
7, A. Finch, Jr.

The meeting then adjourned to Saturday evening next, at 8 o'clock, at Concert Hall.

MR. FILLMORE ON BLACK REPUBLICANISM.—The following extract from Mr. Fillmore's speech at Albany, shows that he entertains the same views of the inevitable consequences of the success of the Black Republicans that have recently been expressed in Democratic papers.—Waukesha Plaindealer.

Of course, MR. FILLMORE agrees with the Buchaneers in their opposition to FREMONT. These Natural Allies, the Sham Democracy and the Know Nothings, "hunt in couples." Mr. FILLMORE thinks that the election of FREMONT would dissolve the Union. Mr. BUCHANAN inclines to the same opinion. These two respectable "old fogies," if differing in other things, agree in their dislike of "Young America."

"THE STAR THAT NEVER SETS."—Glad tidings come to us from the Green Mountain State.—Chief Justice Redfield, Judge Kellogg, and Hon. C. Bradley, heretofore the most prominent Democrats in Vermont, have all declared themselves for Fremont. The latter who has been for years the leader of the Democracy is now one of the Fremont electors. He says: "I told my friends they hadn't turned their coats, but had only unbuttoned them. They had long felt a pressure within, and now that they had unbuttoned their coats, they felt better, and breathed freer!"

Topography of the country around Jerusalem—Pilgrims and Caravans—David and Goliah—The Walls of the City—The Pool of Siloam—The Gardens of Solomon—Joab's Well—The Valley of Jehoshaphat and its Tombs—The Garden of Gethsemane—The Mount of Olives—The place of Ascension—The Holy Sepulchre—The Pilgrims and their Shrines.

JERUSALEM, April 3, 1856.

The whole country around Jerusalem presents an aspect of dreariness and desolation. Although the city is located on a mountain, yet there are others surrounding it on all sides so much more lofty that it has the appearance of being in a valley. If the mountains were once cultivated, as I have reason to believe they were, the beauty and magnificence of the ancient city were not overrated by those who lived and wrote here when it was governed by Solomon. The mountains then were undoubtedly cultivated the same as some portions of the most accessible are now, and the same way that many of the mountainous regions of France, Germany, and some parts of Italy, by terracing the ground.—This is done by artificial plains or stairs being made on the sides of mountains and steep hills; and in many cases where the soil is scarce, it has been carried up from the beds of rivers to a great distance. Such artificial land requires a continued vigilance in order to guard against torrents and other accidents which frequently sweep off the toil and industry of years. In the night of desolation, which has set over this country for nearly two thousand years, all these improvements have been swept away, and nothing now is seen but naked rocks with here and there a shrub.

For a few miles from the coast, the country is quite delightful, resembling very much some of our prairie land; and like that, too, covered with an abundance of wild flowers. But after leaving the plains of Sharon, the traveller enters among purple mountains that strongly remind him of the Appenines. These mountains are many of them high, bold and jagged, yet not in ranges the same as in most countries. Here they seem to stand in circles, having small valleys in the centre.—There are no pretensions to any road, although there is a track. As a general thing there is no such thing as riding abreast, but each horse or camel follows directly after the other. As the time was approaching for the Greek and Armenian, as well as some of the other Christian's holy week, the road was thronged with pilgrims from different countries. Among them were the young, the old and middle aged—all hurrying on with as much haste as if their eternal salvation depended upon being there in the shortest possible time. For mutual protection the pilgrims congregate together at different starting points, so that it is not unfrequent to see a vast multitude together, hastening on with religious frenzy, bordering upon that species of excited enthusiasm that marked the character of early crusaders. Sometimes as many as ten thousand of them in a single body rush down together from Jerusalem to bathe in the Jordan. In addition to the pilgrims, we continually met and overtook caravans of merchants and others with numerous camels, loaded with merchandize, coming from and going to various parts of the world. Nothing can look more picturesque and novel to the stranger than to see, at some distance, a long caravan of camels winding up the sides of a steep Syrian mountain—now the extremes are seen, and now they are gone, and the main body, like the spiral convolutions of some enormous serpent, slowly winds around, mounting higher and higher; now a portion is lost to the view, but again it appears higher up, until surmounting the summit, the extremes are again lost, and the centre is slowly moving onward.

These pilgrims are poorly clad, and come from distant countries. Many of the young and vigorous walk with long canes in their hands, while the old and feeble ride on mules and donkeys. It is astonishing what loads these little donkeys will carry. As the pilgrims have to carry their own provisions as well as beds, the baggage of each one is a load of itself, and covers the little fellow all up except his ears. But on the top of all this is seen one full grown person, and sometimes two, women as well as men, always riding astride of the animal. It is painful in the extreme to see a procession thus pass along, however ludicrous it might look under other circumstances.—The young, as well as the old, look pale and melancholy; no sounds of mirth are heard, but a deathless stillness reigns throughout the company; they move on with that funereal expression that marks the mourners on their way to the burying ground, when the earth is still open to receive into its embrace the "loved and lost," and with their eyes ever gazing towards the highest mountain top in view, they pass out of sight.

In one of the deep valleys, a few hours before we arrived at Jerusalem, we crossed the brook from which David took the pebble with which he slew Goliah. The position of the stream and the neighboring mountains, so well accord with the description found in the bible, (see chap. XVII, Sam. I.) that there is no doubt of the identity of the place. In the dim distance, high up in the air, hangs an Arab village, apparently in a gauge between two naked mountains, by the name of Kulonieh, with a few olive trees among its low houses, and this is the only sign of animal or vegetable life that pervades these solitary and deserted mountains.

After resting ourselves from the fatigues of a journey from Alexandria here, we commenced viewing the ancient city of Jerusalem, and the very many interesting places in it where the most important events of the world have transpired. The identity of these is established beyond question, not only by tradition but history. Most places have guide books, calling the attention of the traveller to the principal objects of interest, but for the information of others I will only state from my own experience, the best guide book that can be brought into all Syria and Palestine is the bible, with its maps and marginal notes and references, such as are found in some of the late editions. The city contains only a population of about thirty thousand; is surrounded by high walls, and has no suburban population like most other places. There is, I think, not a single dwelling on the outside of the walls, on account of the risk, I presume, of life and property.—These walls are from thirty to sixty feet high and built in the most substantial manner; having a circuitous line of zigzags. At the corner of each angle there is a high tower, pierced with circular windows in the form of European castles of the middle ages. They were built by Saladin against the attacks of the Crusaders, but greatly repaired and strengthened some three hundred years since, by Sultan Suleyman. The principal gates are the gate of Jaffas, the gate of Damascus, the gate of Zion and the gate of St. Stephen. These are closed at sundown. After nine o'clock at night there is no admission, and the luckless traveller who happens to get belated beyond that time, must take his lodging in some of the tombs that are found in all the deep ravines that surround the city.

As I have before remarked, Jerusalem stands on several high hills which hills which are here called mountains, such as Mount Moriah, Mount Calvary and Mount Zion. The slope east and and north-westerly towards the valley of Jehoshaphat, which winds around the city in a circular direction, meeting another valley skirting the city around its western and south-western borders, called the valley of Hinnon. The former valley is very deep, having high mountain sides. Near the junction is the site of an ancient bible village, whose name, I believe, was Shoam (See Matthew VIII, 28). The people look poor and squalid, living in miserable huts dug out of the rocks, and the tombs that have been cleared of their tenants to make room for those who have life in their bodies, but hardly more of it in their countenances. Some of the women of this village were carrying up water to the city in the skins of beasts. They were about half clad and looked miserably poor. The skins were slung over their backs and held on as they toiled up the steep banks, by a strap passed in front of their foreheads. Still farther down in this valley is the Pool of Siloam. In one part of it sat a poor woman with bare legs and arms, washing out a threadbare garment as tattered and poor as herself. We descended still farther down and saw the little that remains of the gardens of Solomon. It consisted of a level space, in which there were a few trees. The rays of the sun here gathered from all sides, being reflected from the high mountains as in the bottom of a cauldron, made us sensible of the fine natural position of the spot for the purposes of a garden.—but all evidence of the beauty, splendor and magnificence of the place, have long since passed away. A little further down the valley is Goab's Well, which is held in great repute by the people. It is a large noble spring of pure water, spluging out of the earth, covered by a building in the form of a Grecian temple. Here, too, I found poor people, mostly girls, filling their skins with water to carry to the city.

Returning again by the valley and passing up the same on the east side of the city, through the part of which flows the brook Kedron, we came to what is called the Virgin's Well. To this we descended by some sixty stone steps in a recess cut out of the almost perpendicular side of the mountain. This is merely a rapid stream of pure water that passes through a subterranean passage and comes out in another part of the city at an outlet called En Roget. It is thought by many that, in time of sieges, this subterranean stream was in communication, in some manner, with the city at least one thousand feet above. It was not known until a few years since that there was any connection between this well and En Roget, when a person actually passed from one point to the other and thus made the discovery.

The Fourth of July at Topeka.

Legislature Dispersed by U. S. Troops.

CROMWELL, NAPOLEON—& F. PIERCE.

Swords drawn, Fuses Lit, and Cannon loaded.

Over Four Hundred Dragoons in the Field.

TOPEKA, July 4, 1856—11 P. M.

To the Editors of the Chicago Tribune:—

Naturally a more beautiful, politically a more important day, never rose in Kansas than the present Fourth of July.

Cannon in the camp of the cavalry announced its advent.

Yesterday afternoon, and during the night, the Free State men received accessions to their strength.

About eight hundred men were in the city this morning. Of this number, five hundred, at least, had arms and were drilled.

Flags floated in the breeze from every public building and in front of every tent.

Five companies of dragoons under Col. Sumner were encamped southeast of the town, and five companies from Fort Riley, under Major Merrill, on the opposite side of the river, about two miles northwest of Constitution Hall.

The Mass Convention met at eight o'clock. Speeches were delivered by Col. Phillips, Judge Wakefield, Col. Allen, Judge Schuyler, Rev. Pardee Butler, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Collyer, Mr. Wm. Hutchinson, Mr. Samuel C. Smith, Mr. Watson, of Leavenworth, and others.

The subject of debate was the propriety of the Legislature convening, notwithstanding the intimation received from Col. Sumner that he would disperse that body at all hazards.

We had a clique of Buchanan intriguers in the Convention, who were endeavoring to induce it to pass resolutions by which the Democracy might be saved from defeat at the approaching Presidential election.

For this purpose they privately spoke with approbation of Toombs of Georgia's bill, and various other measures proposed or contemplated by prominent Democrats. They contended that, as it was evident the South was backing down, we ought not to pass any resolutions by which our friends in Congress would be prevented from agreeing on a compromise measure—the repeal, for example, of the Shawnee Code and Free State Constitution both. But they soon found out that no such measure would be tolerated for a moment; that the people were in living earnest, and would repudiate the Republicans as willingly as they denounced the Democracy, if our party consented to make any compromise with our enemies. They hold that as we have a majority in the House, and can therefore starve the Senate and Executive into a compliance with their party demands. Any compromise with the Propagandists would at once disgrace us, and perpetuate anarchy in Kansas.

Seward's Bill—that and nothing else, they are willing to accept. Every attempt to pass any resolution, contemplating another election, another Constitution, or another Territorial Government was unanimously voted down.

The proposition to stop the supplies was very popular.

They are as confident that the Republicans will refuse to pass any Appropriation Bills until Kansas is admitted, as they are that slavery will never be extended over another inch of National Territory.

About ten o'clock, a gentleman moved that the business of the Convention be temporarily suspended for the purpose of listening to a proclamation from Marshal Donelson, of "Et Cetera" celebrity.

The motion was adopted and the great &c.ist mounted the platform.

He is a tall, lanky gentleman of forty-five or fifty years, with a fair complexion, iron-grey whiskers, and imbecile looking eyes. He was dressed in jean pants, vestand coat, and wore a "shocking bad" and very dirty straw hat.

He said, as any judge of human nature could easily see, that he was not good at speaking, and called on Judge Elmore to read the Proclamation.

Judge Elmore rose and took out the official parchment. He read the Proclamation of Franklin Pierce, "President of the Southern portion of the United States," issued in February last; then the proclamation of Wilson Shannon, the sot of Lecompton, who threatened to cut a woman's heart out,—published a month ago—thirdly, another proclamation dated July 4th, issued by Daniel Woodson, Secretary of the Territory and acting Governor, and lastly a note from Col. Sumner, addressed to the Legislature, announcing his determination to execute the command of Woodson—for the Legislature to disperse—"at all hazards."

There was only one copy of Woodson's proclamation and Sumner's note permitted to be taken, and a gentleman carried it off before any of the reporters could transcribe it. It will be published.

As soon as the proclamations were read, the business of the Convention was resumed as if no interruption had occurred.

Marshal Donelson remained. He looked as a country man looks at a railroad for the first time—utterly amazed, apparently, at the conduct and coolness of the Convention.

He left! On reaching the camp he told the officers there must be a fight.

Col. Sumner, excited by the news, ordered his men to prepare for battle.

Two field-pieces were charged with grape shot and the dragoons loaded their carbines and revolvers.

Shortly afterwards they were ordered to march.

The Convention was informed of the fact as soon as they began to move, but proceeded quietly with its business, and continued to discuss the resolution before it, even after it was surrounded by the troops.

As Col. Sumner, riding at the head of his men—about two hundred—turned round the Garvey House, and entered Kansas Avenue, Company G, Topeka Guards, under Messrs. Mitchell and Haynes, were drawn up in front of Constitutional Hall, for the purpose of being presented with a banner by the ladies of the city.

Col. Sumner, both by his manner and tone, indicated that he was determined to obey orders, and expected to fight.

Several of the officers and men have informed us that such was the expectation of every soldier when they entered the town.

Col. Sumner, by a series of rapid movements, stationed his men, with admirable skill, in 3 divisions—one drawn up in front of Constitutional Hall; another in line with it, but further up the street; a third several paces back and between the first and third divisions.

There was no intention of resisting the United States troops; and therefore the Colonel could easily station his forces in the most formidable position. If the people had intended to fight him, he never would have been permitted to enter Topeka.

The drummer of Company G, Topeka Guards, was beating when the troops entered town. He kept on, and the company stood firm, even when the dragoons were riding toward them.

The drummer plied his sticks regularly until the heads of the horses of the first file touched him. He made one step forward and then stood still.

So with the others, none moved till the horses of the troops could go no further without stepping on them, and then they made only one step forward, and immediately "dressed left."

Col. Sumner looked at them half angrily, half admiringly. The drummer still kept on and did not desist until requested to do so by the Colonel

On the banner of the company the ladies had inscribed—

"OUR LIVES FOR OUR RIGHTS."

As soon as the troops were stationed, a committee, appointed by the Convention, waited on Col. Sumner and informed him that the citizens had no intention of resisting the United States troops, and asked him whether he proposed to disarm them, or disperse the Convention.

If he had attempted to do either he would have been resisted by the Free State men.

As he was entering the town, some one moved that the companies lay down their arms and parade without them.

Mr. Watson, of Leavenworth, said—

"Gentlemen—In every city in the United States to-day companies of armed men are parading. We have the same right to carry arms that they have.

"If Col. Sumner attempts to disarm these companies, he supercedes his authority, and does so at his peril. I shall stand among the boys."

This brief speech was loudly cheered.

To return. Col. Sumner replied that he did not intend to break up the Convention or disarm the volunteers; he had come there to prevent the Legislature from convening, and would do so if they attempted to assemble, but if they did not, he would remain in town till after twelve—the hour to which the Legislature had adjourned—and then return to his camp.

Three cheers were proposed and given to Col. Sumner.

I didn't see exactly what this waste of breath was for, and proposed three cheers for Governor Robinson—a man, in my opinion, more deserving of the honor. They were given with the wildest enthusiasm—the boys waving their hats and cheering in front of the armed "instruments" of the Slave Power. One of the officers, a Pro-Slavery man, looked concentrated razors at me for so doing; but after casting a few essence-of-ment-axe glances at him he finally bestowed his eyes on other individuals.

Three cheers were proposed and given for Freedom in Kansas.

Col. Sumner dismounted and entered the chamber of the House of Representatives.

He was very much agitated. The man appeared to be ashamed of the soldier. Col. Sumner is a true gentleman; but he is the tool of Pierce—and is he not to be pitied? I would have given three tears for him if I had the feminine accomplishment of producing salt water at pleasure; but to the servant of F. Pierce—no, by Jove, no cheers.

Mrs. Gaines of Lawrence, and another lady went up to Sumner and extended their "snowy digits."

"How do you do, Col. Sumner," said the ladies.

He took each of them by the hand, and said in a confused tone—

"Ladies, I am sorry to interrupt you; but I must attend to my duty."

"Stop, Colonel," said one of the ladies, as he was going off, "these gentlemen (pointing to the Topeka Guards) met here to receive a banner from the ladies of Topeka, on the day of our would-be-independence."

"You shall be independent," said the soldier as he suddenly left them.

I don't see any point in this conversation—but, as conversations with the fair sex are often pointless, I merely state it as one of the incidents of the day.

The Colonel entered the chamber of the House of Representatives—his sword hanging by his side—with a stern but agitated expression of countenance.

He went up to the platform. The chamber was densely crowded. A deep silence ensued, unbroken till the soldier entered into a private conversation with some gentlemen around him.

At noon, Samuel F. Tappan, Assistant Clerk, in the absence of the Speaker and Chief Clerk, called the House to order, and proceeded to call the roll of members, with as much coolness and regularity as if Col. Sumner had been at Leavenworth and Franklin Pierce a myth.

Twice the roll was called over. Caleb S. Pratt called it a third time. Seventeen members answered to their names.

There were thirty-four members in town, and as the people had decided that the Legislature should proceed, Mr. Tappan rose and ordered the Sergeant-at-Arms to go after absent members.

COL. SUMNER'S SPEECH.

Col. Sumner immediately rose from his seat, apparently much affected, and said:

"Gentlemen—I am called upon this day to perform the most painful duty of my life.

Under the authority of the President's proclamation, I am here to disperse this Legislature, and I therefore inform you that you cannot meet.

I, there fore, in accordance with my orders, command you to disperse.

God knows that I have no party feeling in this matter, and will have none as long as I hold my present position in Kansas.

I have just returned from the Borders, where I have been sending home companies of Missourians, and now I am ordered here to disperse you.

Such are my orders that you must disperse. I repeat that this is the most painful duty of my whole life—but you must disperse.

Judge Schuyler—Are we to understand that the Legislature is dispersed at the point of the bayonet?

Col. Sumner—I shall use all the forces under my command to carry out my orders.

Col. Sumner then sat down and the House and audience dispersed.

After the Chamber was cleared, the old soldier went out and mounted his horse.

A law and order man went up to him and suggested that the Senate should also be dispersed.

Col. Sumner dismounted and entered the Senate Chamber. He delivered nearly the same speech as he addressed to the House of Representatives.

The Senators stood in a semicircle before him; and the Chamber was densely crowded.

After Col. Sumner concluded his remarks, an unbroken silence prevailed.

Col. Sumner, feeling the embarrassment, said: "Gentlemen, do I understand that you consider yourselves dispersed?"

Mr. Preston, of Topeka, President of the Senate, stepped forward and coolly replied:

"I cannot answer, nor can any other member of the Senate. The Senate is not in session."

Col. Sumner felt that his situation was exceedingly embarrassing.

After reflecting for a few moments—his brows knit, his eyes cast on the ground—the Senate was addressed by Marshal Donelson, who said—

"Gentlemen, I want a pledge from each of you that you will not assemble again; if you don't give it, I will arrest every member of the Senate.

This unparalleled impudence on the part of the Marshal was received with the silent contempt it deserved.

Who ever heard before of a conditional arrest? If the Marshal had writs to serve, it was his duty to execute them. He had none, and his threat was at once uncalled for, insulting and childish.

"Will the Colonel," asked Mr. Thornton, "give us time to converse, in order that the decision of the Senate may be known?"

Sumner answered—"No; my orders command me to prohibit you from convening. I must command you not to assemble, and the Senate must consider itself dispersed."

As Col. Sumner was coming down stairs, he recognized Col. Phillips, of the New York Tribune, and nodded to him.

"Colonel," said Phillips, "you have robbed Oliver Cromwell of his laurels."

Sumner did not speak, but the expression of his eye clearly indicated what he thought.

He looked startled at first, then serious, angry and agitated.

He evidently saw at once the full enormity of the orders he had been compelled to obey; and how odious his act, even although unwillingly executed, would appear in the annals of American history.

He mounted his horse and gave orders to march.

Three cheers were given for Col. Sumner, as he put his foot in the stirrup, in order to convince him that, although the people allowed the act he had committed, they did not regard him as responsible for it.

"Forward!—March!" shouted the officer, in a strong, ringing, but agitated voice.

"Three cheers for John C. Fremont!" cried a voice in the crowd.

Three loud, prolonged and enthusiastic cheers were given for the Republican candidate.

The troops heard it, and I saw the Free State officers smile, as they rode along.

"Three groans for Franklin Pierce!" cried another squatter.

An effort was made to suppress this demonstration of disrespect, lest the officers should suppose, as they were now some distance off, that it was intended for them.

But it was too late, and three heartily-given groans were heard in the streets.

I had forgotten to add that, as Sumner came out of the Constitutional Hall, a new American flag was hoisted over it,

Three cheers were given for the star-spangled banner.

The mail is preparing to start. I enclose a copy of a letter from Col. Sumner to a committee appointed by the Convention; the resolutions adopted by the People; a couple of speeches; a communication from the prisoners at Lecompton, and the Memorial to Congress.

The outrage I have endeavored to describe was perpetrated on the Fourth of July, by command of the President of the Democratic Party.

Respectfully yours,

JAMES REDPATH.

Correspondence of the New York Herald.

Important from Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 9.

It is understood among the democratic members of the House that they are to hold themselves in readiness for a coup d'etat at any moment, upon the Senate Kansas bill of Mr Toombs. That bill has not only been fathered by Mr. Douglas and the administration, but it is understood that Mr. Buchanan has authorized his Northern friends to give it their cordial support. The bill covers two great objects—the settlement of the Kansas question and its removal from the canvass, and the speedy admission of the Territory as a slaveholding State. The five commissioners to be appointed by the President, and the Judges of the Elections, &c, are all that the South requires, whatever else may appear upon the face of the bill.

This accounts for the late pregnant remark of Mr. Buchanan that this Kansas excitement will be ended in six weeks. There can be no doubt that he is possessed of the whole plan, and approves it. The bill itself will be so shaped that Northern agitators cannot use it—it will be so smooth and fair; but Mr. Pierce will see to its execution, and that will be satisfactory to the South. They say so. To snatch from the Republicans the weapon which they are now using so powerfully against Buchanan in the North, and to make sure work of this in a final settlement of the Kansas issue, upon a general basis of fairness and impartiality, negotiations have been entered upon between the leading Democrats and some of the judicious Fillmore Know Nothings of the House, in the way of a political bargain. If these negotiations are carried out—and I have no doubt they will be—the first result will be the passage of the Senate bill by the House, with the aid of the Fillmore members; the next result, it is expected, will be the dropping of Fillmore in the South, and a turning of the tables in the North against Fremont, and in favor of this new act for the pacification of Kansas.

It is supposed that the Pennsylvania Dutch Democrat will not hear of the admission of Kansas as a slave State until a year or two after the event and that, as far as New York is concerned, the Fillmore diversion will secure the State to Buchanan. From the frequent consultations of late between Mr. Dunn, of Indiana, (elected as a free Soil Know Nothing,) and Mr. Douglas, it is supposed, even among the Republicans, that the mine is nearly ready to be fired. Mr. Crittenden, of Kentucky, is an active supporter, also, of the new scheme, and Mr. Clayton, of Delaware, is anxious to kill off Fremont. Foreign missions and fat offices are to do the rest. What would you say to the appointment of Mr. Fillmore himself as Mr. Buchanan's Minister to England, by way of inaugurating another "era of good feeling?"

Railroad Contract let from Beaver Dam to Madison.

The Madison branch of the Beaver Dam and Baraboo Rail Road is let from this place to Madison, Messrs. Jackson and McLaughlin being the contractors; the road is to be finished to Fall River by the 1st of November next, and to Madison by the 1st of August next.

Work has been commenced at Fall River, and at several points between Beaver Dam and Fall River. The Depot at the latter point has been located.

Stock enough has already been subscribed to ensure the completion of this road to Fall River by the first of next November. The contractors are to do all the grading, make bridges and lay the iron. The iron and rolling stock are to be furnished by the Company. The contractors are able and substantial men, and we hope the sub contractors will be of the same description.

This road is of vast importance to Beaver Dam, and its contract with the La Crosse Co., must inevitably make it a paying road.—Beaver Dam Republican.

A HUMAN LIFE SAVED.

DOWAGIAC, Mich., March 11, 1856.

J. A. RHODES, Esq:—Dear Sir:—As I took your medicine on consignment, "no cure, no pay," I take pleasure in stating its effects as reported to me by three brothers who live in this place, and their testimony is a fair specimen of all I have received:

W. S. CONKLIN told me—"I had taken nine bottles of Christie's Agne Balsam, and continually run down while using it until my lungs and liver were congested to that degree that blood discharged from my mouth and bowels, so that all thought it impossible for me to live through another chill. The doctors, too, did all they could for me, but thought I must die. Nothing did me any good until I

ANNIVERSARY OF THE LIGHT GUARD—TARGET EXCURSION —The Milwaukee Light Guard celebrated their first anniversary yesterday by a Target Excursion to the Clayton House The Corps paraded between 10 and 11 o'clock A M, between 10 or 15 strong and marched to the Niagara House in the Fifth Ward where they took Omnibuses for the Clayton House During the short halt at the Niagara House the hospitable landlord, Abel Hosack, furnished the corps with some very palatable refreshments Arrived at the Clayton House, a capital dinner was served up in Mr Clayton's best style, was fully enjoyed and then the business of the day commenced The target was a circular one with a six inch bull's eye, and two outer circles, six inches apart was set up at a distance of sixty five yards from the shooting point The Corps was divided into squads of ten, and fired in succession, each man having three shots Mr A J Arnold of the American, and Lt Whittelsey of the Union Guard, acted as Judges The prize asked for, were

1 An order for a $25 Dress Coat presented by H Sutton & Co

2 An elegant chased Silver Gobblet, worth $20 presented by A B Van Corr

3 A Silver Salver, worth $18 presented by F N Heard

4 A Silver Goblet, of beautiful pattern worth $15 presented by Tobin & Hoes

5 A Silver Front Knife presented by A B Van Corr worth $3

In addition to these, Gen A W Ross of Madison County very generously offered to the State and an Honorary Member of the Light Guard came upon the field during the day and presented the Guard with an elegant Gold Watch, to be shot for by the winners of the five prizes

The competition for the prizes was very animated, and in the practice of the men excellent More than four fifths of the balls struck the target, and many of the members planted all three shots within the outer ring The best single shot was made by Private F B Mills, who plumped the bull's eye but his average was not so good as many others The winners of the prizes were

First Prize—J B Waldron, string 21⅝ inches
Second Prize—J D Spaulding, string 26¾ inches
Third Prize—A A Winslow, string 28⅝ inches
Fourth Prize—I B Kellogg, string 29⅝ inches
Fifth Prize—W B Chandler string 29 15 16 inches

All of these competitors struck the target every time For the Gold Watch, to which Mr Van Corr liberally added $5 00, the five winners of the prizes fired three shots each Thirteen of the fifteen balls struck the target, and Mr Winslow was declared the winner, making a string of less than 20 inches

The shooting over, the corps returned to the city much pleased with the day's work, and most grateful to their fellow citizens, Messrs Van Corr, Shoran, Loomis & Hoes and E N Heard, and to Gen A W Ross of Madison, for their very handsome and most acceptable presents The target, which followed the Light Guard on their march home, spoke for itself It was completely riddled We have rarely seen so good a one made, even by veteran companies

SAD DEATH BY DROWNING — Yesterday forenoon, the body of GEORGE H SILKMAN, a young man about 19 years of age, was found in the river, near Hill's warehouse It had on the pantaloons, boots, shirt and neckcloth of the deceased The coat, vest and cap were previously found on a pile of lumber just north of the warehouse A quantity of papers memorandis, &c, were found a short distance from the clothes

Young Silkman was last seen alive at or near the Hawkins House, in the 5 ths Ward about one half past ten the night previous, and left as I supposed, for his boat — He was a clerk in the American Transportation Co's office, in Dousman's warehouse, where he was much liked He was for several months in the Sentinel office, and was a favorite with all who knew him He had a generous heart, was kind and obliging to all, and was, at all times, attentive to the interests of his employers

The parents and all other members of the family are deeply bereaved at his death—so sudden, and so shocking

CHILD KILLED BY A FALLING HOUSE —A little boy named John McCarey was killed on Huron street, yesterday forenoon, by the falling or settling of a house which, at the time of the accident, was being elevated to suit the new grade of the street

As near as we could learn the boy, who was about six years of age, was playing under the house, which stood on stocks being raised, when one of the stilts broke, letting it down upon him. He was shockingly bruised and killed almost instantly

F. M. LANE'S

PERMANENT GLOSS PAINT.

An important Improvement in Painting!

THE PERMANENT GLOSS PAINT for inside work has long been a desideratum. All paints prepared with Linseed Oil, will rapidly turn from the light to dark and most opposite hues to the yellow color of the oil itself—the change being the more rapid as the paint is exposed on the full light of day

The subscriber has a sufficiently long experience in its use, as recommend it as the only Gloss Paint in which this important defect is effectually remedied This beautiful paint can be applied of any color, from the purest white, to shading required for pencilling, to all the different varieties of tints, suitable for private dwellings, Churches, Hotels &c, whilst its brilliancy and richness of surface is surpassed by no other paints. It possesses superior advantages in its use, as impervously excludes the most delicate colors with which it is combined

Also, Plain and Ornamental Painting, decoration of Private Dwellings, Churches, &c., Sign and Fancy Painting

MEDICAL.

DR. WEAVER'S

DANKER & SALT RHEUM SYRUP & CERATE.

IT IS AN UNDISPUTED FACT that the above medicines are the only infallible remedies now before the public for cutaneous Eruptions, Salt Rheum Sty pelas Sore Legs Ulcers, Old Fever Sores, Scald Heads Scabby or Rough Skin, &c, &c.

Cases that the most eminent Physicians have despaired of relieving, immediately yielded to their active power and were cured in accordance with the printed direction which accompany each bottle, the Syrup and Cerate combined eradicates any of the above named diseases, and leaves the sufferer without a blemish These medicines have been known to require anything more than a plain statement of facts The joyful intelligence is spread daily from East, West, North and South, of wonderful cures they are performing

See what is said by those who have used these medicines

The Rev Samuel Henry, of Palmer, Mass., says, "I was completely cured of Erysipelas in my legs, after a council of the best Physicians in the County had pronounced it hereditary in the system, Cut my legs which was seventy eight years but Weaver's Syrup and Cerate did the work in a few days"

Elias Latham, Esq., of Orient, Long Island, N. Y., says "I hardly know how to express my gratitude for the good my medicines I have been enabled for more than thirty years with Salt Rheum in its worst form I tried several Physicians in New York, Brooklyn and Newport were consulted and taken medicine enough to make a pretty large book, but they did me no good I have tak n your medicine one year, and am now able to work and walk, which was impossible for eight months, my neighbors say I am the most singular man on the Island."
